The septum divides the heart lengthwise into two sides. The right side pumps blood to the lungs, and the left side pumps blood to other parts of the body. Each side of the heart is divided into an upper and lower chamber. Each lower chamber is called a ventricle. Each upper chamber is called an atrium. In each side of the heart blood flows from the atrium to the ventricle.